Admiration for Ka'ū police officers and their staff is shown on a plaque from the Hawai'i County Council. The Certificate of Appreciation hangs at Nā'ālehu Police Station, which serves as a headquarters for the Ka'ū District.

On Oct. 21, during the 20th Anniversarv Fun Dav Celebration for Nā'ālehu Police Station, Ka'ū's County Council member Maile David and Council member Dru Kanuha presented the plaque to Hawai'i County Police Chief Paul Ferreira, Assistant Chief Mitchell Kanehailua, and Ka'ū Police Captain Kenneth Quiocho. The certificate expresses appreciation for not only the Hawai'i County Police Department but also "for the officers who protect and serve the Ka'ū community."

It notes that "on Aug. 30, 1997, Nā'ālehu Police Station was completed and opened its doors with one captain, three sergeants and several officers." It states that "The Hawai'i County Council recognizes and appreciates every officer to the highest degree for your invaluable service and personal sacrifice and to each of your families who sacrifice so much as well."

The certificate also expresses "our heartfelt aloha" and Police Headquarters, pg. 10

ounty Council Reaches Out to Trump & North Korea

A peaceful, diplomatic solution to the North Korean standoff with the U.S. is the aim of a resolution approved by the Hawai'i County Council on Oct. 18. The vote was unanimous among all eight council members in attendance, including Ka'ū's County Council member Maile David. She said she supports the resolution in its expression of peace and aloha. "Even though the message is coming from a tiny county out in the Pacific, we have hope that our aloha spirit can touch the hearts of those who are deep in conflict. Because we are such a multicultural island, we know that no mater who we are, we have to live with each other and take care of this planet. We are a small county with a big message of aloha and goodwill to everyone," said the councilwoman.

The idea was brought to the council by Koohan Paik, who lives on Hawai'i Island, but grew up in Korea. She said her father was a refugee of the Korean War, became the first Korean attorney in the nation and moved back to Korea. She said that with her family background in the Korean War, and herself an appreciative U.S. citizen, she is concerned that warships have been sent from Pearl Harbor to the Western Pacific to become involved with the North County Council, pg. 3

FireThreatens Eucalyptus, Coffee & Macadamia Plantations

A fire in late October threatened Ka'ū Coffee, macadamia and eucalyptus farms above Pāhala. The fire shut down Ka'alaiki Road, the old cane haul route to Nā'ālehu, as it burned grass and charred eucalyptus trees on Kamehameha Schools land near Ka'ū Coffee and macadamia plantations.

A helicopter made water drops for three days while county and volunteer fire crews worked to protect the town and its surrounding agricultural industries which employ many of the residents. Firefighters made constant runs to hydrants in Pāhala to refill their trucks as the fire burned on land away from any domestic water sources.

The fire department reported that the fire site was near the long abandoned Keaīwa and Higashi sugar camps.

Eight Man Football on this island fits the smaller schools with fast running, high scoring games. It was the brainchild of current Ka'ū Athletic Director Kalei Namohala. Ka'ū won the championship in the inaugural season, in 2014, and again in 2016 and 2017. Here is the score-by-score report from Namohala, sourced from postings on her live twitter feed:

In the the first quarter, Isaiah Pilanca-Emmsley threw a pass 25 yards to Janslae Badua for a touchdown, followed by two extra points by Pilanca-Emmsley. Ka'ū lost two points to Pāhoa with a safety on a punt.

In the second quarter, Badua ran for a touchdown with two points added on by Zachary Kai. At halftime, the score was Ka'ū 16, Pāhoa 2.

In the third quarter, Pāhoa's Correa ran two yards for the team's first touchdown. Pāhoa made an extra two points with a run by Harris taking the score to Ka'ū 16, Pāhoa 10. However, the Trojans followed up quickly with Pilanca-Emmsley making a five-yard toss to Isaiah Naboa who ran for the touchdown, lifting the score for Ka'ū to 22, Pāhoa 10. However, Pāhoa came back with a 31-yard pass from Correa to Harris for a touchdown. Harris also ran for the two extra points, making the score Ka'ū 22, Pāhoa 18. With only five seconds left in the third, Trojans scored again with Kai's 15yard pass to Pilanca-Emmseley who ran across the goal line and also scored the extra

Trojans Wrap Cross Country, Help a Fallen Runner

A Trojan stopped in his track to help a fallen runner during the BIIF Cross Country finals at Kamehameha School on Saturday, Oct. 21. Revis Petitt, along with a Kea'au High and a Christian Liberty High School runner, "felt the need to stay and help and not continue the race until medical help arrived," said Ka'ū Cross Country Coach Erin Cole. "Even though the three good Samaritans, all from different schools, were disqualified after running across the finish line side by side, nearly seven minutes late, they made the right decision. Parents and other fans thanked them from helping their fellow cross country racer."

The Ka'ū Cross Country team is comprised of senior Revis Petitt, senior Daryl Moreira and freshman Bernadette Ladia. During the season, they ran five races at venues far away: Kamehameha School, Kea'au High School, and at Waiakea High School. Also participating in the season were freshmen Amber Sugrue and Angel Dahlstedt.

The coach described the Ka'ū High Cross Country team as "a small but solid group of athletes. The team started training in mid-August. "They were strong and ready," she said. They trained for the 5K approximately 3.2 miles on the school campus, which measures almost one mile when running all the way around. "It is a beautiful campus and the varied terrain best mimics race conditions," said Cole.

Volume 15, Number 11 The Good News of Ka'ū, Hawai'i November 201

recognizes "the late Robert 'Uncle Bobby' Gomes for his love of Ka'ū and who dedicated more than half a century of his life protecting and serving the families and children of Ka'ū."

Nā'ālehu Police Station, the Ka'ū headquarters, is managed by Police Operations Clerk Patti Mlakar who bedecked honored officials at the celebration with fresh flower lei.

Police coverage of Kaʻū consists of six officers on three shifts. The Kaʻū force is led by Capt. K. Quiocho, Community Police Officers Dane Shibuya and Clayton Tayamen, and Sgt. Jason Grouns, Sgt. Jenny Lee

During the Fun Day, families converged on the station located just outside Nāʻālehu along Hwy. 11, on the slope looking out toward Honuʻapo and Volcano.

They enjoyed free keiki ID's from police officers, food - hot dogs and chili and rice - while being serenaded by the Backyahd Braddahs and delighting in an array of activities. Miss Ka'ū Coffee Jami Beck congratulated the police officers. 'O Ka'ū Kākou members helped put on the event, managed parking and offered shaved ice.

With the event taking place less two weeks before Halloween, an officer braved the heat in a Star Wars storm trooper costume.

Representatives of The Food Basket handed out two large bags of food items to all those who would accept.

SERVING THE KA'U AREA OVER 25 YEARS

StarsoverKa'ū-November 2017

by Lew Cook

If you're an early bird, rising well before the sun, you'll see the morning stars. Venus is a brilliant morning object rising about 5:45 a.m. on the morning of the 15th, but on the first it rises at 5:30 a.m. yet on the 30th, it won't rise until 6:00 a.m. Venus is ahead of the earth in its orbit, and as it zips around the sun quicker than the earth does as it is getting closer to the sun going. Mars is ahead of Venus as the earth is ever-so-slowly catching up with Mars, and it has passed Venus in the sky... or is it the earth being lost behind Venus and is catching up with Mars? Yes! That's it.

This month, we've got an Early Bird Special! Just before sunrise around the 15th, Venus is saying "Bye-bye" to nearby Jupiter with the moon and Mars higher up in Virgo. I tried to time this chart for just before Nautical Twilight ends and Civil Twilight begins. Then, in the eastsoutheast, look just up from the eastern horizon. The brighter point of light is Venus, higher up is Jupiter, then still higher you can find the crescent moon. Still higher you may be able to spot Mars (not shown on yhis morning look at the stars).

Oh, yes, look at the moon. Do you see the sunlit crescent? Of course you can. But Looking East, about a half hour before sunrise around the 15th of November you will see Venus, Jupiter, the crescent moon.

can you see the darker rest of the round moon shining dimly? Why is that? The sun shines directly on the bright crescent, but what is the source of the light that dimly brightens the rest of the moon? Think about it (if you don't know already). I'll wait! (The answer is near the end of this article).

How to use this map: Hold this map over your head so that the northern horizon points toward the north on the Earth. For best results, use a red flashlight to illuminate the map. If you are looking east, hold it in front of you so that east is on the bottom. For south views, south at the bottom, and for west, west at the bottom. Use this map at the times shown on in its upper left corner. Keep this page handy and show it to your keiki next month. They probably have bedtimes before the time of the chart shown here. Check the colors of the stars with the color version at: http://www.kaucalendar.com

The constellations are presented with their 3-letter abbreviations, with their common names shown in the margins. Constellations near the meridian have their names shown. Stars as faint as magnitude 6 are shown. This is done to take advantage of the truly dark skies Ka'u is blessed with when there is no bright moon and the skies are clear of vog! The star charts are produced from a sky Atlas program written by Jerry Hudson, who has given us permission to publish it. Thank you, Jerry! www.lewcook.com

Answer to Question about why you can see the whole moon when only a crescent is

On the crescent moon, you can see the dark portion dimly lit by reflection of sunlight falling on the earth. Sometimes, when there are a lot of clouds on the earth this "earthshine" is brightest. That is why you can see the whole globe of the moon when it is a crescent.

All donations go to Rotary's Polio Plus program. Rotary's efforts, since 1988 have taken down the number of polio cases from 350,000 to about ten. However, vaccinations are required to keep the disease from reigniting and spreading, Meyers said.

The span of time for the individual Ride So they Can Walk events is Saturday, Nov.

Each Ride So they Can Walk participant, who brings in at least $100, receives a commemorative towel. To sign-up, make the $20 registration check to Charlene Meyers, with Polio Plus Chair on the notation line. For contribution checks of $100 or more, make out to Rotary D5000-Polio Ride. Free Hepatitis C Testing at Volcano Farmers Market Nov. 5

Hepatitis C testing is free at Volcano Farmers Market on Sunday, Nov. 5, from 6:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. According to the Volcano Community Association, which is sponsoring the event, one in 30 Baby Boomers (born between 1945 and 1965) have Hepatitis C and most don't even know it.

Hepatitis C is distinct from other forms of the disease. There are vaccines for Hep A and B but not for C.

The test for C is a simple finger prick blood test and the results are ready in 20 minutes. The disease can be treated and cured. The only required information from people being tested is a consent form which the testers will provide.

Volunteers Paul Takehiro and Jewel Castro are the Hep. C testers from Hawai'i Island HIV/Aids Foundation, and organizer Danielle Flannery is a Hep. C educator from Gilead Sciences. Sponsors are Volcano Community Association, Cooper Center Council, Gilead Sciences and the Hawai'i Island HIV/Aids Foundation.

Alalā Released Again into Pu'u Maka'ala Reserve

three males, were released into Pu'u Maka'ala Natural Area Reserve near Volcano in mid October. It was the second group of endangered Hawaiian crows to join a previous group released into the forest at the end of September. "These 11 birds represent what conservationists hope will be the beginning of a recovered population of the endangered crow species on the island," said a statement from the Department of Land & Natural Resources.

The 'Alala has been extinct in the wild since 2002, preserved only at the Keauhou Bird Conservation Center at Volcano and Maui Bird Conservation Center, both managed by San Diego Zoo Global's Hawai'i Endangered Bird Conservation Program.

"Our efforts to bring this species back from the brink of extinction have been tremendously bolstered by our ability to protect a small population of 'Alalā in a conservation breeding program in Hawai'i," said Michelle Bogardus, U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service Geographic Team Leader for Maui Nui and the Hawai'i Islands. "Now that we have built up the population to more than 125 birds at the Hawaiian Bird Center we can begin the long road to recovering this incredible species in its native habitat"

The first group of 'Alala released into the forests of Hawai'i in late 2016 encountered predation pressures from the native Hawaiian hawk, or 'Io. Surviving birds from this first group were brought back into aviaries while a team of conservationists looked at ways to improve their chances in the next re-introduction.

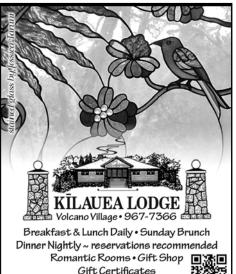

"Knowing that there is a high mortality rate associated with releasing species into the wild, particularly in a situation like this where the species has been absent from native habitats for close to two decades, the 'Alala Working Group looked closely at how to improve the many factors that might affect the success of these two groups," said Jackie Gaudioso-Levita, Project Coordinator of the 'Alala Project. "The team developed new strategies that took into account outcomes from the last release, while adapting management techniques to improve successful transition to the wild."

The concerted re-introduction efforts,

Espaniola has worked in the Youth Internship Program at Hawai'i Volcanoes National Park as a Park Guide in the Kahuku Unit. She was responsible for checking people in at the gate and giving scheduled tours to visitors.

"I am very grateful to be learning more about this place, learning from it, and the people who work here," says Espaniola.

In her fourth week working for The Nature Conservancy, Espaniola says she is "Amazed at the places she has been to so far. It's so beautiful," and added that she is "learning a lot. I'm writing things down every day." She said that she is surprised by how small the staff is to manage such large portions of land, and how much they accomplish each day. She said she is inspired

The resolution states that "global tensions and anxieties have been further heightened by the uninhibited exchange of rhetoric" between leaders of the U.S. and North Korea. It notes that on Sept. 11 this year the United severe sanctions upon North Korea; it also "reiterated the importance of maintaining peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula and in north-east Asia at large, and its commitment to a peaceful, diplomatic and political solution to the situation through dialogue in order to reduce the tensions in the Korean Peninsula and beyond."

Corey Harden, of Hilo, testified, that "People are probably wondering why North Korea is so belligerent. But who knows about the U.S. bombing during the Korean War?" She said: "A former Wash-funded by the state Hawai'i Department of Land & Natural Resources, San Diego Zoo Global, and U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service have addressed challenges by changing the timing of release to avoid the peak of winter storms, changing the release site location, releasing mixed-sex cohorts with established social associations, and enhancing the "antipredator training program" to reinforce the instinctual behaviors for responding to predators like 'Io.

"The first group has stayed together, foraging close to the release aviary and creating social groups with each other similar to what we expect for young birds of this species," said Joshua Pang-Ching, Research Coordinator for the Hawai'i Endangered Bird Conservation Program. "We also observed some alarm calling showing us that these individuals are very aware of their surroundings and are learning to re-

"After running low on urban targets, U.S. bombers destroyed hydroelectric and irrigation dams, flooding farmlands and destroying crops. The U.S, dropped 635,000 tons of explosives on North Korea. That's over 100,000 more tons than used in the entire Pacific during World War II. Thirtytwo thousand tons of those bombs were were Napalm. General Curtis Lamae, head of the Strategic Air Command, said (every town was burned down and one out over every five people was killed from war, or starvation, or exposure.> That>s why North Korea is so belligerent," said Harden.

She asked, "Why is the U.S. so belligerent?" and pointed to Pres. Donald Trump, contending that he undermines negotiations and calls out the North Korean leaders. She said that voters must work on resisting Trump, through voting for those

spond to the natural threats that may occur in their environment."

The DLNR statement said that "the team will continue to monitor the group of 11 birds in the NAR for years to come. The NAR is an area that The Three Mountain Alliance and DLNR have worked for decades to preserve, protecting native plants and species, and it represents one of the types of habitat where 'Alalā originally lived before their numbers began to decline.

"Alalā have a legacy of being an integral part of the life of the Hawaiian forest, as they eat and assist with the dispersal of native plant seeds. 'Alalā are not only ecologically significant as dispersers of Hawai'i's native plants, but they are significantly revered in Hawaiian culture. The re-introduction of this species is expected to play an important part in the overall recovery of native ecosystems."
